Hall Chadwick confirmed as a top 20 accounting firm in Australia

Hall Chadwick firmly holds its place as a leading top 20 accounting firm in AFR's Top 100 Accounting Firms 2020. The rankings were published yesterday with Professional Services Editor Edmund Tadros writing "The COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in accountants becoming a lifeline for clients struggling with keeping their business afloat."

David Lissauer, Chairman Hall Chadwick Association believes resilience and focus kept the practice on course through the year "We were able to pivot our service delivery model early. Our practice leaders and staff responded superbly."

He said keeping staff informed and helping clients navigate state and federal economic support programs has been core in each office around the country. "Consulting has seen the lion's share of practice growth over the last few years. However this year, in helping clients leverage stimulus packages, our business services practice has been very strong.

"Whether it be a situation of recovery or survival, the client-accountant relationship has never been so important moving into 2021."

Hall Chadwick is an association of independent accounting firms that combines the experience and skills of over 300 staff to deliver professional services across Australia.
